HIALEAH CITY COUNCIL PASSES REPEAL OF RED LIGHT CAMERA ORDINANCE

Hialeah, Florida – On Tuesday, June 28, 2011, The Hialeah City Council, in a second hearing, passed the repeal of Hialeah, Fla., ordinance 08-92 (Dec. 11, 2008) that codified a red light traffic safety system authorizing the use of unmanned cameras, in a 6-1 Vote.

“The citizens of Hialeah have made their opposition to the Red Light Cameras very clear. Residents feel this program is just another form of taxation. These cameras take millions of dollars from our local economy, thereby affecting our citizens and businesses. Also, there have been questions by the court regarding the legality of these cameras. It is important that we, as elected officials, listen to our citizens and act in benefit of our community,” stated Mayor Hernandez, who initiated the process to repeal the ordinance in May.
